Jesse Chisholm

JESSE CHISHOLM AND THE CHISHOLM TRAIL

Jesse Chisholm was an Indian trader, guide, and interpreter. He is famous for the Chisholm Trail, which ranchers used to drive their cattle from Texas to eastern markets in Kansas. Before the beginning of the Civil War, Chisholm had built several trading posts in what is now western Oklahoma. He never drove cattle on the trail named for him.

Chisholm’s mother was a Cherokee. In the late 1820s he moved with her to the Cherokee Nation and settled near Fort Gibson. He became a trader and took trade goods west and south into Plains Indian country. He was fluent in 14 dialects, established small trading posts, and was soon in demand as a guide and interpreter. He was trusted by all for his fairness and neutrality.

Chisholm left the Cherokee Nation and settled in the Creek Nation, in what is now Hughes County. At various times he had trading posts on the edge of the Great Plains, including one near the site of Lexington (in what is now Cleveland County) and one at Council Grove (in Bethany, near what is now Oklahoma City). Much of his trading was done by taking wagons and going to the villages of the Comanche and other Great Plains tribes. At various times he rescued captive children and youths from the Comanches and Kiowas. He adopted them and reared them with his own family, treating them just as he did his own children.

In 1865, Chisholm and James R. Mead loaded a train of wagons at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and established a trading post at Council Grove on the North Canadian River, near the site of the Overholser Lake Dam, in present Oklahoma City. Many of his Wichita friends followed. Their route became the Chisholm Trail, which connected Texas ranches with markets on the railroad in Kansas.

Chisholm died of food poisoning after eating rancid bear meat at Left Hand Spring, near the site of present Geary, on April 4, 1868.

Vocabulary

dialect— a regional variety of a language differing from the standard language fluent— able to speak easily and smoothly guide— one that leads or directs another on a course interpreter— a person who translates orally for people speaking different languages market— a meeting together of people to buy and sell neutral— the quality or state of not favoring either side in a quarrel, contest, or war rancher— a person who owns or works on a place for the raising of livestock (as cattle, horses, or sheep) on range rancid— having a strong disagreeable smell or taste site— the place or scene of an occurrence or event trader— someone who takes part in the exchange, purchase, or sale of goods trading post— a station or store of a trader or trading company established in a thinly settled region where local products (as furs) are exchanged for manufactured goods

www.agclassroom.org/ok